

Maggie Jo has graduated!

Peg and I watched Maggie Jo receive her diploma from LeTourneau University with great pride and happiness. She worked very hard and did well in her major, Biblical Studies, and her minor, Airline Dispatch. In the picture below Maggie Jo is wearing her academic medallion, and an international sash. The sash was made to resemble the Mozambican flag, in memory of her childhood there. We are so happy for her. We know her future is bright because she laid an excellent foundation first in high school and then at university. We all three are thankful to the Lord for the provision of such an excellent education.

Maggie Jo will be taking an intensive summer course in June-July that will lead to a chance to take the FAA's certification test for Airline Dispatch. The course is 8+ hours per day with little time for eating or anything else. Pray that she will do well. Once she has the certification then the job prospects are excellent since there is a shortage of certified dispatchers.

Peg's health update:

As you can see in the picture, Peg's recovery from her reconstruction surgeries is nearly over. We are praising the Lord that Peg was able to attend the graduation ceremony. The surgical wounds on her back are now declared healed. There are a couple of small areas on her head that are being a bit more stubborn. Recently, the vein-donor site on her leg has developed a staph infection so she is back on antibiotics. Please pray for these last sites to heal well.

Travel Plans

Peg's health struggles have kept us from visiting friends and family like we would normally do. We are excited that now we can travel. We will be in New Jersey for Peg's nephew's wedding on Memorial Day weekend. While we are there we will take the opportunity for some vacation time at the beach. It is said that "salt water cures everything", so we are going to try it. Maggie Jo will then have to fly back to Texas to attend her summer course. We look forward to reporting in at First United Methodist Church in Court House on June 3rd and Word Fellowship church in Stratford on June 10th.

Afterward, Peg and I will make our way to Indiana with a stop in the West Virginia mountains. We will visit churches in Indianapolis, Fishers and Marion. We will have an open house on June 15th for attenders of both Grace Church campuses. Contact Kevin and Suzy Roth if you are interested in attending. We'll be at Lakeview Church on June 17th. Then on June 24th we'll report at a luncheon at Faith Missionary Church. Contact Carolyn Goldenetz if you can help with that (317-752-0840). If you want to get together individually, please contact us and we'll arrange a time. Jeff: 903-371-0297; Peg: 317-361-9140.
